Dear You-

What are your big summer plans?

Right now, we're all about the six high school students in our Pre-College class The Perzine Is Political.

An important topic of discussion is making school fun and overthrowing the ten-page paperarchy.

Meanwhile, Claudia just returned from Gainesville, FL after working on a project with the Civic Media Center, which was their first zine library.  Later this summer, they'll attend the Zine Librarians unConference in San Francisco.

But for the moment, summer zine assistants Alex Owens and Erinma Onyewuchi, along with Claudia and me, are helping support zine researchers from Germany, Hong Kong, and the UK.

The Perzine Is Political

As referenced in our intro, our zine librarian is hosting a Pre-College course titled The Perzine is Political. The course runs through July 13, 2023.

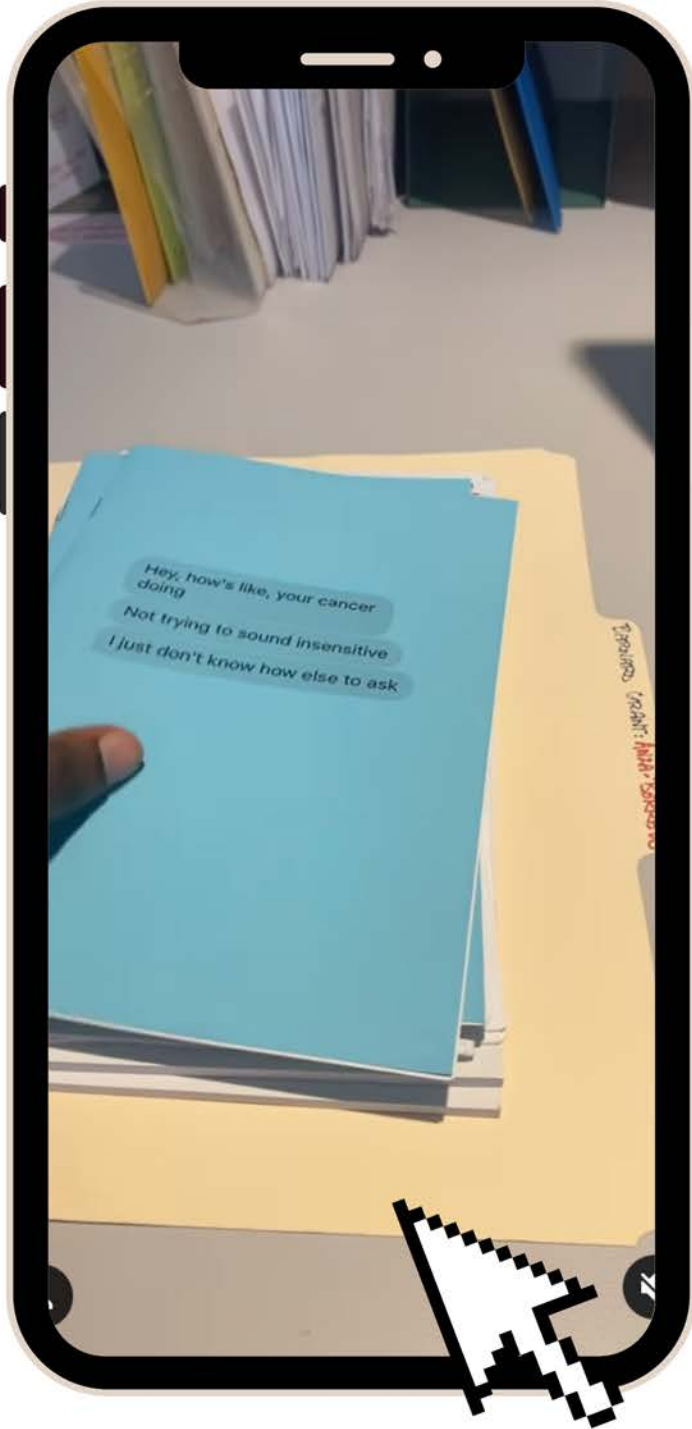

Students are readings zines, academic articles, and excerpts from Girl Zines: Making Media, Doing Feminism by Alison Piepmeier.

This month we highlighted zines we purchased at Bluestockings when we were tabling at the Lower East Side Pride Book Crawl.

We also tabled at the events, giving away copies of the Barnard Zine Library Zine and other zines and stickers from our swag-brary.

We are excited to have Erinma leading our social media this summer!

Hear Us Emerging Sisters

(HUES): Winter 1996

Hues' (Hear Us Emerging Sisters) Winter 1996 provides guidance for women about any topic that could be on their minds. From choosing the right tattoo to credit cards, this issue packs original photography, retro graphic design, and explorative articles into 8 by 11 heaven!

This work considers and forefronts the experience and curiosities of women of color in its numerous articles, submitted essays, and advertisements. If you are looking for a piece of the nineties with timeless issues that apply to today look no further than HUES! Check out this issue or the whole series on CLIO! - Erinma
